1. I entertained General William Harris, Deputy Commanding General of Fort Sam Houston, and his wife and two daughters for lunch. Mr. Kirkpatrick joined us for lunch since they are old friends of his. General Harris was pleased to hear of the progress  is making at Walter Reed.

have handled for us. (I have not yet heard from the Office of Logistics on this score but assume that I shall in due course.)

staff, when he retires from the Army this summer. (I talked to John about this. He said that he would talk to Ting Sheldon and would be in touch with me.)

b. General Carter also advised me that he had requested a series of CIA briefings for senior NSA personnel and that he hoped I would take a personal interest in them and ensure that we use top-level speakers. I assured him that I would look into this. (This I have done.)

4. [REDACTED] telephoned to say that the Director found the list of personnel detailed to the White House satisfactory and intended to use it on an appropriate occasion to impress McGeorge Bundy with the amount of assistance we are rendering.

5. [REDACTED] was in for a short visit. He expressed no dissatisfaction with the support he has received. However, I gathered that he feels [REDACTED] has been understaffed with competent Support people. He mentioned that we had been unable to furnish a doctor who would be placed under [REDACTED] and that he planned to talk with [REDACTED] about this tomorrow morning.

9. [REDACTED] telephoned to give me some very rough cost estimates on the house the Director wants to build which added up to about $120,000 plus. He admitted, however, that this figure was probably quite low and recommended that the Director employ a good architect to produce detailed plans. He also thought that a good architect might effect some savings by using good substitute materials for some of those the Director said he wanted.

10. I talked with both John Tietjen and Bob Fuchs about the [REDACTED] case. It is still too soon to make a decision on this, but I gathered from John that he tentatively thinks the problem could be handled better in the [REDACTED]

11. John Tietjen was in to discuss the following:

a. He briefed me on the history of the [REDACTED] case. In retrospect, John felt that, had the Medical Staff been more aggressive, [REDACTED] might well be alive today. I arranged for him to brief Dick Helms on this case at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow.

b. John also talked with me about the medal for [REDACTED]. He thought that no presentation should be made for at least the next few days and was somewhat dubious about the desirability of presenting it at all.
